I In Memoriam

Mrs Alma Lily Stackhouse (nee Mansell) was born on Flinders Island in 1934. Her parents were from nearby Cape Barren Island. She was a proud descendent of the 'Beetons of Badger Island', an even smaller island in the Furneaux Group.

Aunty Alma was one of Tasmania's most respected Aboriginal Elders. She was a founding member of the Flinders Island Community Association in 1973, and an inaugural member of the Tasmanian Aboriginal Education Consultative Committee, the Reconciliation Council, the Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Commission Tasmanian Regional Council, the Aboriginal Elders' Council of Tasmania, as well as a member of the Country Women's Association and many other committees and groups. Aunty Alma established a lifetime of commitment to a community she proudly referred to as 'my people'.

In 1989, Aunty Alma was named Tasmania's Aborigine of the Year and awarded the Order of Australia in recognition of her contribution to her community's development. During 2004 and 2005, the year of her death, Aunty Alma worked as Elder in Residence at the University of Tasmania. Here, she chronicled her long contribution to Aboriginal education and developed a firm commitment to the importance of higher education for her Community.

2 Goals of the Scholarship

The Alma Lily Stackhouse Scholarship was launched in 2008 and honours her commitment to the value of higher education for young Aboriginal people by providing a scholarship for two years to support an Aboriginal student from a remote or rural area to access and complete senior secondary study. The goal of the scholarship is to help students in their studies towards receiving the Tasmanian Certificate of Education (TCE) and ATAR to enter University or other tertiary-level study. Funds received should be used to cover costs directly associated with gaining the TCE/ATAR, including but not restricted to materials, equipment, travel, and other costs of living whilst enrolled in Years 11 and 12.

- live in a remote or rural part of Tasmania ('rural and remote' are distances greater than 56km from a school that offers relevant courses)
- intend to enrol or already be enrolled in Year 11 or 12 at a Department for Education, Children and Young People school or college
- select a career pathway that will lead to receiving a degree or other tertiary-level qualification from a recognised institution.

4 Payment of the Scholarship
